The fifth commandment says to honor your parents. God is showing the Israelites that having healthy

_____ relationships was important to having a good community

Addressing the sixth commandment, Jesus says that even besides murder, we should not _____

each other

The seventh commandment says to not commit adultery. Marriage eventually becomes a spiritual symbol of the love between _____ and the _____

The eighth and ninth commandments address the topics of stealing and false testimony. Since communities are built on trust, what can you do to show that you are a trustworthy person? _____

Because the Israelites didn't have modern technology for their judicial system, their _____ needed to mean something. In our everyday conversations today, it's still important for our words to be trustworthy.

The tenth commandment tells us not to covet. Gratefulness can be a good way to fight off the temptation to covet. What are you grateful for? _____

God gave these commandments because He is a deeply relational God. How does it make you feel that God cares about your relationships, both your relationship with Him and with others? _____
